.com Whether you're a dollmaker or rubber stamper, a ceramist or metalworker, a knitter, quilter, weaver, or just about any other type of craftsperson (even a scrimshander or tattoo artist!), you'll find all kinds of sources in The Crafts Supply Sourcebook. Organized alphabetically by craft, this excellent reference is divided into two main sections: general arts, crafts, and hobbies; and needlecrafts, sewing, and fiber arts. Within each category are alphabetical listings of sources, complete with addresses, phone numbers, descriptions of what the companies offer, what their catalogs cost, and whether discounts are available. The final section lists associations, publications, and display suppliers. Just browsing through some of the listings may give you ideas for interesting crafts to try, and now you'll know exactly where to get the supplies. Enjoy sixty listings organized by areas of interest, ranging from basketry and kite making to home decorating, metalworking and woodworking. Over 2,500 suppliers of crafts materials provide mail order services, reaching out to many smaller town residents who would ordinarily find it difficult to locate specialty items. -- Midwest Book
